

CHURCHILL WARNS ITALY TO SURRENDER

Akron Central Assistant Named Salem High Grid Coach

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

THE swiftly moving Allied successes in Russia and Sicily were crowding Herr Hitler into a mighty tight corner even before Mussolini's downfall came to increase the difficulties of the Nazi position.

These widely separated operations strangely enough are creating a squeeze which, irrespective of developments on the Italian mainland, may in due course force the Fuehrer to pull back his entire battle line on the eastern front. This would be one of the greatest withdrawals in history. That line represents more than a thousand miles of defenses which have been buttressed with the bodies of hundreds of thousands of German youth.

The point is, as previously pointed out in this column, that the Nazi chief is compelled to regard the assault on Sicily as the possible forerunner of an Allied drive up through the Balkans. The danger is multiplied by the Italian political upheaval which may result in a separate peace. An invasion of the Balkans would create a grave threat to the whole German right wing, which already is shaking under the hammering by the Red armies.

Of course, the Anglo-American team has Hitler—and the world, for that matter—guessing as to where they may strike next. Possibly the Allies themselves are keeping open minds, since a quick surrender of Italy would make the Balkan adventure decidedly more attractive. Should Marshal Pietro Badoglio withdraw from Yugoslavia and Greece the Italian troops which represent the main Axis defense there (and he is unofficially reported to have issued such an order already), it would open up possibilities which the Allies could scarcely ignore.

In any event, it would be folly for the Nazi gangster to disregard the contingency of an early assault through the Balkans. His hope of avoiding a wholesale readjustment of his hard-won positions in Russia must lie in stalling the western Allies off until the bad autumn weather arrives to impede military operations on the Balkan peninsula. This likely accounts for his orders to his forces in Sicily to fight to the death.

HOWEVER, even if Italy doesn't make a quick surrender and thus end the whole show, the Nazi forces which are cooped up in the northeast corner of Sicily will find small chance of holding out long. With General Montgomery's veteran Eighth army smashing at the German left wing in the vicinity of Catania, and our hard-boiled General Patton's Seventh army advancing on the right flank, it can be only a short time before the Hitlerites collapse.

Should Hitler be compelled to pull back his front in Russia, the first withdrawal presumably would be to the line of the great river Dnieper, which empties into the Black sea at Odessa. That would bring the right wing anchor close to Rumania, which he hopes—undoubtedly with much misgiving—will go on fighting for him and continue to provide the only source of natural oil left to him.

It has been the Fuehrer's plan that Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary should stand in the way of an

JOHNNY SCOTT WILL SUCCEED RAY OVERTURF

Appointment of Football Mentor, 4 Other Teachers Made by Board

Salem's High school's new football coach is Fulton J. (Johnny) Scott, now assistant coach at Akron Central High school.

His appointment was approved by the board of education at an adjourned meeting last night. Scott, who is 29 years old and a graduate of Kent State university, was one of several coaching prospects considered by the board. Among the group was Joe Kelley, Salem's Memorial building manager who declined to accept due to his present activities.

Kelley, who supervised Junior High school physical education work last year, expressed a desire, however, to help the High school athletic program in other ways.

Scott, one of five teachers hired by the board last night, will succeed Raymond Overturf as football coach. Overturf was inducted into the Army in June.

Kent University Graduate
Scott received his High school education at Ravenna Township High school where he played football four years. He afterwards played football at Kent university and following his graduation from college in 1937 took a turn at playing pro football with an Erie, Pa. team.

He has served as assistant coach at Akron Central for the past year. His team beat Salem here last fall. Scott is highly recommended by Robert Harper, general supervisor of athletics for the Akron public schools, and by Supt. of Schools Larry Brown of Ravenna. The latter is a member of the state athletic board.

The new coach is married and the father of two children. He will come to Salem at the annual salary of $2,200.

His teaching subject at Salem High school will be industrial arts, thereby filling another vacancy that has been worrying school officials.

A vacancy occurred in the industrial arts classes when Elmer Wagstaff quit last spring to accept a job in war industry. Trades Class Coordinator Holland Cameron and Don Couden, mechanical drawing instructor, taught the industrial arts classes for the balance of the school term.

The new football mentor has a brother, Fred, who has resigned his

HAMBURG RAIDED FOR FIFTH TIME

RAF Bombers Blast German Seaport in Devastating Attack

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, July 27.—The fifth time in 48 hours Hamburg was attacked from the air last night as the RAF sent Mosquito bombers over the German seaport for the third successive night, the British air ministry said today.

Returning crews said there was a clear sky over the devastated city and flames could be seen while they were more than 30 miles from the target.

Airmen were quoted as saying the flak was not so intense as had been expected but there were some night fighters on patrol. The air battle designed apparently to flatten Germany's great port of Hamburg began Saturday night when RAF bombers carried out the greatest raid of the war in dropping 2,300 long tons of explosives and incendiaries. Since that time the RAF and the United States Army Air Forces have kept up round-the-clock attacks.

The USAAF hit the port in daylight Sunday with a large fleet of heavy bombers and the same night RAF Mosquitoes took up the attack.

The Americans raided the city in daylight again yesterday. Offensive was unchecked.

The air offensive rolled on unchecked throughout daylight today with Allied formations crossing the Dover straits toward the Calais area. The aircraft winging over the channel in brilliant sunshine appeared to be fighters.

ITALY TO END FIGHTING SOON

So declares Secretary Knox Who Predicts Italy's Withdrawal from War

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, July 27.—Secretary Knox said today that developments in Italy indicate some attempts to take that country out of the war in the reasonably near future.

The Navy secretary told his press conference he had "no exclusive information" on the situation, but it was his estimate "that the appearance of things indicates probably some attempt at taking Italy out of the war."

He was asked whether he meant an attempt by King Emanuel and Marshal Badoglio, successor to Mussolini. He replied he meant such an attempt.

As to the time, Knox said: "I think it will come in the reasonably near future."

The Navy secretary was reminded that when Secretary Hull was questioned yesterday about application of the "unconditional surrender" formula to Italy, Hull said he had not yet consulted the Army and Navy.

Knox commented that "only one man" could say how the formula would apply. Asked whether that one man was Prime Minister Churchill or President Roosevelt, he quickly amended his reply to say:

"Only two men could answer your question—but they will speak with one voice, I am sure."

In response to further questioning the secretary said Italy possesses strategic positions useful to the Allies for "certain purposes." Bases set up in the peninsula, he said, would be extremely useful for an advance across the Adriatic sea and air attacks on southern Germany. Knox said he knew of no evidence of internal cracking in Germany in line with the upheavals in Italy.

School Levy Up For Vote In November

The board of education will seek the voters' approval for renewal of the one and one-half mill school operating levy at the November general election.

Formal action was taken by board members Monday night when they passed a resolution certifying the issue to the board of elections.

Salem public schools will open Thursday, Sept. 9, for the 1943-44 school term, school board members decided last night.

The opening on the first Thursday after Labor day will permit the schools to complete the regulation 180-day school year at the usual time and permit holiday vacations.

The levy, approved two years ago as a means of raising required operating expenses, will be up for a four-year renewal this time. The mill and a half levy is in addition to the regular three-mill school levy already in existence.

Upon the recommendation of the text-book committee of teachers and school board members, the board adopted a resolution to have the book, "Our Language Series," used as the official English text for grades three to six, inclusive.

ALLIES PUSH EASTWARD IN SICILY FIGHT

American, Canadian Troops Repulse Savage Enemy Counter Attacks

(By Associated Press)
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 27.—American and Canadian troops, throwing themselves forward in the northeastern area of Sicily, have cut to pieces savage German counter attacks in the central sector and advanced over ground strewn with Axis dead. Allied headquarters announced today.

At the same time a headquarters communique announced that Allied air forces had smashed a new enemy attempt to bring reinforcements on a large scale into Sicily by shooting down 21 huge German Junkers-52 transports in a battle over Messina Strait.

It was stated officially that German troops now have been identified all along the entire front in northeastern Sicily where they are attempting to build a dike across the tip of the island to block the invasion gates to Italy.

Enemy losses skyrocketed in the central and southern portions of the line and a number of German battalions lost half of their effective strength in attempts to batter back the relentless forward rush of the Allied troops who swept in a wheeling movement from central Sicily.

"According to Plan"
The Canadians bore the brunt of the operation and made gains against the heaviest opposition, and the Allied communique said the American advance, too, was proceeding "according to plan." However, the Germans were managing to stiffen their resistance as the American drove into the harder core of the enemy's defense positions.

Activity on the Catania front where the Germans are fighting to hold the gateway to the Messina escape port was still confined to patrol action.

In East Rochester cattle have been attacked and bitten by dogs which may have rabies and in East Liverpool today a child was bitten.

Il Duce Favored Nazi Plan To Abandon Southern Italy

Air Travelers Reaching Madrid Give First Italian Version of Mussolini's Downfall; Duce Reported At Villa Near Ostia

(By CHARLES S. FOLTZ)
MADRID, July 27.—Travelers arriving by plane from Rome today declared Benito Mussolini felt because he supported a German plan to abandon central and southern Italy for a strong defense line in the north, and that he now is at a villa between Rome and Ostia.

The new government of Marshal Pietro Badoglio insists all of Italy must be defended if Italy is to remain in the war, and the Germans have been forced to agree, they declared.

Hitler first proposed a strong stand behind the Po valley, and Mussolini, seeking to do his bidding, was overruled by the Fascist grand council by a vote of 19 to 6, it was asserted.

Carlo Scorza, Fascist party secretary, was reported under preventive arrest, with others of Il Duce's collaborators confined to their homes.

On the issue of defense of all Italy, Badoglio for the moment at least has the support of the army and the crown, both of which enjoy tremendous popular prestige as successors to Mussolini, this late-hour account of the crisis in Rome said.

Italian Version Heard
The first clear report of what happened after Mussolini resigned came with the first Alfa Litoria plane to leave Rome since the event.

Some of these travelers were Italian. From them were obtained this account of Mussolini's fall: When Il Duce returned to Rome from his Verona meeting with Hitler, he called in his immediate party aides and told them that Hitler considered southern and central Italy undefendable with Sicily in Allied hands.

He said German plans called for a stand behind the Po valley, and suggested evacuation not only of Italian arms and munitions and troops behind this line, but all possible rolling stock, food stores and harvests so that the Allies would be left with the problem of supplying the population.

Ohioans Laud U. S. Air Raid On Germany

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, July 27.—Four Ohioans, who participated in the U. S. Army Air force's second successive daylight raid over Hamburg and northern Germany yesterday, agreed unanimously today it was one of their most successful attacks.

Lieut. Howard Ness of Grafton, co-pilot of the Flying Fortress "Thumper Again," reported "I'm sure we knocked out one whole group of warehouses," and Photographer Sgt. Martin Kagle of Cleveland Heights, added: "It looked to me like our bombs were right on the target."

Staff Sgt. John C. Denayer of Canton differed with Lieut. Martin C. Minnich of Piqua in recounting enemy resistance. Denayer, tailgunner of the "Evasive Elsie," said "Fighter opposition was weak. Two persistent devils stayed back and lobbed shots at us, but they wouldn't come in."

Minnich, co-pilot of "Our Bay-bee," related "We made our bomb run with 13 Germans on our tail. And whenever a damaged bomber would leave our formation between seven and 12 fighters would pounce on it like vultures."

ITALIANS TOLD TO BREAK YOKE WITH GERMANS

Commons Cheers Prime Minister As He Hails End of Fascism

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, July 27.—Prime Minister Churchill told a cheering house of commons today that "we shall continue to make war on Italy from every quarter" so long as she continues to side with the Germans. "Orders to this effect already have been given to all Allied commanders concerned," he said.

Thus far, the prime minister added, he has received no peace overtures from Premier Pietro Badoglio's new Italian government.

"The decision of Italy to continue under the German yoke would not seriously affect the general course of the war and still less, would it alter its ultimate result," he said. "The only consequence will be that in the next few months Italy will be seared and scalded and blackened from one end to the other."

Meanwhile Churchill expressed no opinion on the new government of Italy.

"The keystone of the Fascist arch has crumbled and without attempting to prophesy it does not seem unlikely that the entire Fascist edifice will fall to the ground in ruin if it has not already done so," the prime minister declared.

Great Changes Anticipated

Making his first war statement to commons since the invasion of Sicily and the fall of Mussolini, Churchill told the cheering members:

"We may reasonably expect very great changes will take place in Italy. What their form will be and how they will impinge upon the forces of German occupation and control it is too early to forecast. "The Germans naturally desire that Italy shall become the preliminary battleground and that by Italian sufferings the ravages of war shall be kept as far away as possible and as long as possible from the German fatherland," Churchill asserted.

If Italy continues to fight with the Germans, however, he said, "from north and south, from sea and from air and by amphibious descents we shall endeavor to bring the utmost rigor of war increasingly upon them."

Apparently implying that the Allies would accept surrender from the Badoglio military government, Churchill added:

"We certainly do not seek to reduce Italian life to a condition of

Car and Bus Operators To Accept Wage Increase

CLEVELAND, July 27.—AFL street car and bus operators, whose strikes in recent months twice tied up Cleveland's mass transportation system, have voted to accept a 3 1/2-cent hourly pay increase granted all city transit system employees nearly two months ago. President Thomas P. Meany of the union announced today.

The union originally asked raises of 14 1/2 to 17 1/2 cents hourly, then lowered its demand to 10 1/2 cents an hour. Under the present wage schedule, including the 3 1/2-cent raise, operators on two-main street cars receive 94 cents hourly, and bus and one-man car operators are paid $1.01 an hour.

SELF-AGITATION

One of the causes of avoidable trouble neglected in studies of the things that keep people from maximum efficiency in wartime is self-agitation.

Its victims are individuals who, because of personality traits they have not overcome, or excitement and exhaustion which make them susceptible to irritation, are highly vulnerable to all suggestions of trouble.

They are a wartime problem just as truly as food shortages and transportation bottlenecks. Their halting tempers and susceptibility to suggestions of quarrelling lie behind many of the fights that complicate the prosecution of the war. They are found at all levels of the population, from the highest positions in government and management to the most obscure stations in the war plants.

In the military organization, itself, they can be dealt with forthrightly. No chronic troublemaker would be tolerated in a submarine crew, but the discipline is lacking to bar troublemakers from similarly important points in the organization behind the fighting men. There the problem they create must be handled either by the vague technique of suggestion, or left entirely to the individual's own power of discipline over himself.

The need for cool heads is not confined to the fighting fronts, but covers every activity of a nation at war. The agitators—who stir up trouble professionally—can be taken care of. If the self-agitators would take care of themselves, most of the besetting complications of maintaining the efficiency that can beat the Axis in the shortest possible time would disappear overnight.

LULL IN THE BATTLE OF WASHINGTON

Communications from the battle of Washington indicate the lull made possible by the congressional recess is being used to regroup the Roosevelt administration's forces for the next big drive.

The apparent aim is to bolster up as many of the weak places in the home front as possible before congress convenes in September. Despite its unwillingness to accept congressional criticism of its face value, the administration finally seems to be acting on the suggestion that things would run more smoothly if some of the causes of criticism were removed. It is too soon to know what to expect, but not too soon to believe some of the faults in administration of the home front have been recognized and will be overcome.

Meanwhile, it will continue to be helpful to watch for further signs of the radical attack on congress. The issue between the radicals and moderates has been joined squarely in the house of representatives and the senate. Apprehensive of the mounting legislative influence of the moderates, the radicals have resorted to attacks on congress to save themselves. They are spurred to greater endeavor by signs that the administration, which they once controlled, may be yielding to moderation.

Thus, in the showdown between Secretary of Commerce Jones and Vice President Wallace, which resulted in a defeat for Mr. Wallace, the radicals have taken up the cudgels in his behalf. The newspaper PM says he must be kept on the Democratic ticket in 1944 to save the New Deal, the tipoff on what is happening in the struggle for power that goes under the name of the battle of Washington.

SACRIFICIAL GOATS

The spokesmen for the organized labor minority who have demanded the resignation of Price Administrator Prentiss Brown unless the price clock is turned back to last Sept. 15 may have an idea at that.

There already is precedent for using OPA as an altar for sacrificial goats. Leon Henderson preceded Mr. Brown as a victim. He was sacrificed to appease the wrath of those who thought OPA was doing too much. Mr. Brown would be sacrificed to appease the wrath of those who think it is doing too little.

Perhaps the Roosevelt administration should keep one job open for its sacrificial goats. The occupants would know what was in store for them, just as Mr. Henderson and Mr. Brown both have known that in all probability their heads would be chopped off to appease someone.

Unfortunately, it doesn't solve anything, but evidently there is some strange satisfaction derived from sacrificing a victim periodically. Perhaps it is the culmination of the strong trend toward personal government that inevitably results in periodic demands for "satisfaction" at the expense of individuals, rather than re-appraisals of principles and policies administered by the individuals. Certainly the separation of Price Administrator Brown from his job would be a poor substitute for forthright discussion of the question of whether or not the United States is going to pay the price for stabilization—a question which spokesmen for the organized labor minority now seem to be ready to answer in the negative.

A RATHER difficult state of affairs is indicated by certain adverse aspects among important planets. There may be menace of fraud or imposition, with an undercurrent of treachery and intrigue. These may be overcome by shrewd attention to the logic and reasonableness of problematical situations. A danger may arise from too expansive and ambitious a view, as well as by looking at things from a morose, sullen and perhaps vindictive attitude. playing the 18th hole, are wont to crack their knuckles every once in a while and remark that they are full of acid.

They remain blissfully unconscious of the fact that an excess of acid in the body does not produce pain, but sleepiness. For instance, diabetic coma, when the patient is completely unconscious is a manifestation of acidosis.

As a matter of fact, it is very difficult to produce an acid condition of the blood. Nature likes the juices of living things to be neutral or slightly alkaline, and protects her alkalinity fiercely.

Acid Treatment for Epilepsy
A method of treating epilepsy is to keep, or attempt to keep, the blood slightly acid. This, while not going so far as to produce sleep or coma, has a soothing effect on the brain and thus conduces to the prevention of attacks. The latest medicine for epilepsy is a form of glutamic acid which has this effect.

But for many years a standard and in some cases quite successful treatment for epilepsy was the ketogenic diet which, by furnishing fat in large quantities to the reduction of sugar and starch in the diet, created an acid condition also.

In epilepsy the use of the diet reduces the number of convulsions sometimes completely. The symptoms of about 30 to 35 per cent of patients who follow the diet six months are controlled; the condition of another 30 to 40 per cent is improved; about 30 to 40 per cent of all patients are not benefited.

Best Results In Young

The best results are obtained in children and young adults who are just beginning to have seizures, and in whom the regularity of convulsions has not yet become a habit. Children stand the diet well. And they are far more faithful to it than most adults. If they get some benefits, they are logical enough to keep on with what is good for them.

This is shown in the story I have told before, but which will bear repeating of a doctor friend of mine who was in the general store of a small town and bought some candy to give to a group of youngsters who had gathered around. One of them refused and said, "Mister, I wouldn't eat a piece of that candy for 50 dollars, because if I did, as sure as anything I'd have a fit before I got home." He had been on a ketogenic diet for two years.

Ketogenic Diet

A typical day's ketogenic diet is: BREAKFAST: Fruit; 3 slices bacon; 1 egg; 1 slice bread; 2 squares butter; ¼ glass 40 per cent cream.

LUNCH: Meat; 5 per cent vegetables; butter; ¼ glass 40 per cent cream; fruit dessert.

DINNER: Meat; vegetables; salad with dressing; 1 slice bread; 2 squares butter; 1 glass half milk and half cream; cheese and crackers; fruit dessert.

Theatre

Walt Disney's technicolor musical, "Saludos Amigos," will be at the State theater Wednesday and Thursday, along with "Two Senoritas from Chicago." The picture opens in a Chicago hospital where Joan Davis fancies herself as a theatrical agent. She stumbles upon a play, which has been thrown away by two Portuguese playwrights, which she sends to New York. Complications arise when she is wired to come to New York to work on producing the play. Jinx Falkenburg and Ann Savage play the leading supporting roles.

Franchot Tone and Ann Baxter play the romantic two-some in the thriller packed film, "Five Graves to Cairo," which comes to the State Friday and Saturday. Set against the background of the British Eighth army's African campaign, it tells the story of how a British tank corporal, Franchot Tone, stumbles into a hotel which is about to be taken over by Field Marshal Rommel. Tone, with the aid of Akim Tamiroff who owns the hotel, and Ann Baxter, a French chambermaid, learns the plans of the Nazi general.

Tonight and Wednesday a fast moving drama of the underworld, "Silent Witness," showing the crimes of an outlaw gang in a large city and the efforts of the police to capture them, will be featured at the Grand, together with "Secrets of a Co-Ed." "Wings Over the Pacific" and "The Avenging Rider," is scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Grand.

AMERICAN BRED by FRANKEN MELONEY

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

"I suppose you were put out of your last apartment," Helen went on. "And as for feeding him, good Lord, Ann, I think you're crazy!"

"She," Helen corrected.

"He or she, it's insane," Helen looked around. "This is a more expensive place you've taken," she said.

Ann nodded. "Much. But it was all I could get, and besides, Rowdy needs a terrace; it takes care of a lot."

"You must have found a wonderful job," Helen hazarded, biting her lips.

Ann snorted. "What do you mean, wonderful job? A college education is a liability these days, not an asset. I even answered an advertisement for a mother's helper. But the mother didn't seem to feel it would be a help to have Rowdy."

Helen developed little red spots all over her neck, as she put two and two together and got the wrong answer in looking over the apartment. Helen had one of those clean minds that preferred to think clear instead of speaking it.

"Ann," she began and stopped.

"Ann," she began again. "Ann, I'm not dead. All this costs money."

"It certainly does," Ann fervently agreed.

Helen clutched at a straw. "You sold your car."

Ann shrugged. "It's on its last legs. Who'd want it?"

The little red spots on Helen's neck ran up to her face in a purplish flush. "Then where's the money coming from?" she blurted out.

Ann smiled. "You'd never guess. One of the Morgans. Isn't it too marvelous?"

Helen turned pale. Her voice came out in a bleat. "I don't believe it! You? A Rivers?"

"Even Rivers have to eat," Ann reminded her.

"But don't you love him?" Helen whispered.

"Certainly I love him. I've always loved him. He's been my favorite Morgan ever since I was a kid. That's what makes it so hard."

Helen swallowed with difficulty. "Which one is it?"

"Anthony. You remember him—Mad Anthony, we always called him—the most spirited one of the lot."

"Ann!" Helen broke in on a screech. "Stop it this instant! She rose in agitation. 'I won't stay to hear another word! Something dreadful has happened to you! You've lost all sense of decency and shame!'"

"Oh, dear," responded Ann. "I didn't dream you'd take it this way. But after all, we've still got eight horses left."

Helen sat down, or rather her legs seemed to cave under her and the sofa met her halfway. "Then you meant one of the Morgans," she said weakly.

"I said 'one of the Morgans.' Or didn't I? Why, Helen, you're white as a sheet! You certainly didn't think I was leading a life of dishonor, just because I have a terrace?"

Helen reared. "The idea! How could such a thought enter my head with your upbringing?"

"You'd be surprised, Ann murmured. 'The better the upbringing the bigger the downfall.'"

Helen ignored the quip. "I gather from all this roundabout talk that you've sold the black stallion," she said primly.

"Mr. Wain did. You know, my tenant. Very enterprising of him, don't you think? It helped me out of a hole, he got his ten per cent commission on the deal, and I was able to send him an extra hundred to take care of repairs."

Helen looked bored. "Well, that settles it. He's definitely not the Wain I had in mind, though I was hoping against hope. Arthur told me, however, that they were lawyers, and wouldn't be renting a place at fifty a month." She gave a short laugh. "Much less getting commissions on what they sell."

"I made the rental price," Ann flared, "and why shouldn't he take a commission?"

Helen was the kind of person who catalogued people once and for all. They were lawyers or doctors or grocers or ambassadors, and she expected them to continue from generation to generation under the same classification; it was the thing to do, and besides, it saved her the trouble of reclassifying them.

"I hope," Helen said now, with a trace of apprehension, "that you're not going to let yourself get involved in any friendly relations with this man, your tenant. I mean after all, just because he sold a horse for you..."

"I haven't seen him since the day he rented the house," Ann informed her. "You can save yourself any worry on that score."

"Oh," said Helen. "Well, I must say I'm relieved. That time you talked to me over the phone about him, I gathered you'd found him attractive."

"I don't see how you could have gathered anything of the sort," Ann replied a little sharply.

"You seemed worried about his hand."

Ann glanced at her sister. Once in a great while Helen had her moments, only she never knew when she was having one. Now her face was an utter blank. She had made a remark, and that was all.

"He got mixed up in a dog fight, was bitten; I helped treat the bite until a vet took charge," Ann dismissed the incident curtly. "Besides, he has a wife to worry about him."

"Oh, has he?" Helen seemed surprised and relieved. "You didn't mention that he was married. What kind of a woman?"

"I haven't the least idea. I didn't meet her."

Helen sat up. "That was very stupid of you. You should have made it your business to meet her before turning the house over to them. She might be the worst kind of slattern. Haven't you even been up to see what's happened to the place, how it's being taken care of?"

"No, I haven't," Ann said. "But he's a peer. He wants a new repair almost daily. I haven't even let him know where I moved to, which explains my letters being forwarded, by the way. What does he expect at that rental, anyhow?"

"But that's not the point!" Helen argued. "If you rent your property you have to keep an eye on it, particularly with people you don't know the first thing about."

Ann considered it. "You mean you advise me to drive up and look things over?"

"Definitely," Helen's lips met in a straight line. "You'll probably find a shambles by this time. Moreover, I'd see this Mr. Wain and have a talk with him. For all you know, he may have sold two of those valuable horses. Human nature is human nature. It's just tempting him to all sorts of laxness if he thinks you're not interested in your property and don't care what happens to it."

"There's a great deal in what you say," Ann granted, with a slow dimple coming into the lower part of her cheek.

"If I were you, I'd drive up there tomorrow," Helen persisted.

"You would?"

"I would."

"I will. But only on your advice," she added.

Helen expanded. It was pleasant to feel that she had managed things. She began to talk about Tom Barton, and wouldn't it be more sensible for Ann to own a Scottie instead of a Great Dane?

"A lot more sensible," Ann agreed. Already, in her thought, she had started off for Myles.

When she awakened the next morning, she was bothered by a queer tightening in her chest. Some silly after-effect of her cold, she concluded. But she had no intention of giving up her trip to Broadfields. Tom telephoned just as she was leaving. He said, "Don't forget we're going to the theater tonight."

"I won't. I'll be ready at seven-thirty," she promised, and sneezed.

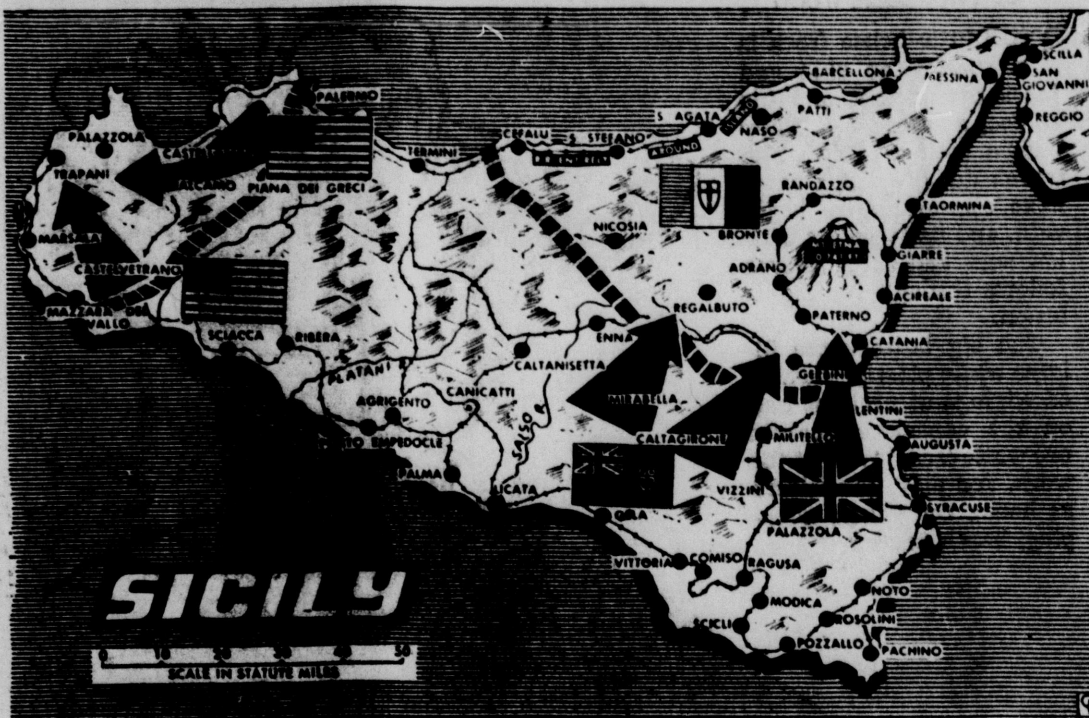

She felt better as soon as she hit the outskirts of the city. The day was lovely, with the air sun-warmed and full of spring. Rowdy was beside herself with joy, ecstatically breathing down Ann's neck, and fogging the windows.

Ann came within view of Broadfields, she drew the car to a stop with a sense that she was dreaming. Contrary to Helen's gloomy prophecy that she would find a shambles, there was fresh paint on the house and barns, long stretches of well-kept lawn, and endless patterns of new hurdle fence running off toward smooth meadows, freshly ploughed and cleared of brush.

Tears dimmed her eyes. For so long, she had wanted to reclaim the land and bring Broadfields back into its own. And then the dream melted into nightmare as she thought of the hundred dollar check out of the sale of Mad Anthony, that she had contributed toward repairs. Christopher Wain must have spent thousands, she thought in rising panic. Even now, there was a veritable traffic jam of workmen's cars parked all around the place. A thought occurred to her. Was he punishing her for her stubborn refusal to let him know where she was?

Ann should have heeded her first impression of him—an ingratiating ne'er-do-well, the sort of ungrateful man a woman likes to ruffle the

ALLIES CONTINUE TO ADVANCE RAPIDLY IN SICILY

WHEN AN AMERICAN ARMORED COLUMN STRUCK north in Sicily and speedily captured Palermo, the capital city, they trapped more than 45,000 Axis troops in the western end of the island. These forces are being mopped up rapidly while strong U. S. units move eastward along the north coast in the direction of Messina. Most of the Axis troops cut off by the U. S. drive to the north are believed to be cornered around Trapani. Canadian troops are reported driving forward in a northeasterly direction to add their strength to that of the British Eighth Army in the vital Catania area.

Trembling with the shock of it all, she started the car again and sped up the driveway into the courtyard. Rowdy scrambled across her knees and poured like water through the open car door. Ann was wild. "Roughneck! You come back here!" But Rowdy was gone, out across the lawn. A man yelled, and ran after her. He brought her to Ann, his fingers firm against her collar. He was angry. "Please put your dog back in the car, Miss," he commanded. "We don't low stray dogs around."

Telegraph Companies Plan Telefax Service After War

WASHINGTON—After the war: Chances are if you want to send a telegram you'll approach a machine in a hotel lobby, railway station or other public place, drop a coin, dial the number of the party you want, and put your message in a slot. Four minutes later he should have your message, no matter where he lives. And he should have an exact reproduction in longhand or typewritten.

Telegraph companies say it's ready to put into operation. They call it telefax (from facsimile). Patrons of the new system will be listed in a telegraph directory the way phone subscribers are listed now.

About two and a half million trained workers in the U. S. are now turning out combat and cargo planes.

It Couldn't Be Cooler

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THIS little house frock is as pretty as skill and fabric can make it, and it is as cool as a breeze. Navy muslin with a puffy white woven dot gives it a snowflake appearance to begin with, and its loose cut with low neck and short sleeves follows through for the illusion.

The big buttons are flutiger white plastic, the fluted edgings at neckline and on the capacious pockets are white lace. Wear it for work, for play, for leisure at home, for village shopping, beach parties.

This frock, which launders beautifully, is pin-money priced.

RAF Bombers Blast German Seaport In Devastating Attack

devastation from the heavy attack by RAF heavy bombers Sunday night. They reported fierce fires were still burning there.

Sharing the weight of the American assault with Hamburg in daylight yesterday were three other northwest German cities—Hannover, Wilhelmshaven and Wesermunde.

American medium bombers dumped their cargoes on the German airfield at St. Omer, France, while British medium, light and fighter bombers attacked Courtrai, Appelle and Merville. American Thunderbolt fighters made wide sweeps over the French and Dutch coasts.

Returning raiders said German fighter opposition was spotty but the Allies had the better of the situation for a final check showed 54 Axis planes shot down against 29 for the Allies.

Heaviest opposition was reported at Hannover, where the Americans struck at two synthetic rubber plants employing 50,000 workers. The American pilots said the flak was heavy and they were opposed by a force of from 75 to 100 fighter planes, of which they destroyed 33.

An Allied communiqué said good results were observed on all of the targets.

Many Slaughterers Violate OPA Rules

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND, July 27.—One of every five slaughterers and meat distributors checked in a recent Office of Price administration investigation had failed to roll back their prices in accordance with government specifications, the regional OPA announced today.

James C. Gruener, OPA attorney, said more than 20 per cent of nearly 1,000 slaughterers and distributors investigated had violated the rollback order.

The check covered 12 OPA districts in the five-state region of Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, West Virginia and Kentucky. These districts have headquarters in Toledo, Cleveland, Dayton, Columbus, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, South Bend, Lexington, Charleston, Iron Mountain, Grand Rapids and Detroit.

Of 958 slaughterers and distributors investigated, 202 failed to roll back meat prices and were charging above ceilings; 194 failed to meet sanitation specifications; 256 failed to grade meat properly; 259 failed to register as required by OPA, and 191 failed to keep proper records, Gruener reported.

The OPA reported 17 injunction proceedings, one suspension hearing and one treble damage suit brought in the Toledo district, 50 suspension proceedings filed and 37 warnings sent out in the Cleveland district, 28 Columbus district violators reported to the food distribution administration, and in Cincinnati seven injunction or suspension.

chaos and anarchy and find ourselves without any authorities with whom to deal."

"I certainly don't wish, in the case of Italy, to tread a path that might lead to execution squads and concentration camps, and above all to have to carry on our shoulders a lot of people who ought to be made to carry themselves," he said.

"We should allow the Italians, to use a homely phrase, 'to stew in their own juice' for a bit and hot up the fire to the utmost in order to accelerate the process until we obtain from their government or whoever possesses the necessary authority all the indispensable requirements we demand for carrying on against our prime and capital enemy which is not Italy but Germany."

While Italy has only "about one-tenth of the power of Germany," Churchill said, "the whole outlook of the Nazi party and regime... will be disturbed and broken by events which happened and are going to happen in Italy."

"German hopes of U-boat warfare turning the tide of the war are sinking as fast as the U-boats themselves," he said.

Iran Bakery Shows The Way To Mass Feeding Of Europe

AP Features
TEHERAN, Iran—American officials in French North Africa, studying mass feeding problems, have asked for information on the operation of Teheran's central bakery, perhaps the largest such enterprise in the world.

In some respects it may well serve as a model for mass feeding establishments likely to become necessary with the reconquest of Europe.

The central bakery, operated by the Iranian government in conjunction with a government granary and flour mill, now is producing daily 160,000 loaves of bread of 800 grams each, the basic daily ration of workers. Hard-pressed, the bakery could up this to 300,000 daily.

The enterprise can be credited to Joseph Philip Sheridan, American adviser to the Iranian ministry of supply. It played a great part in keeping Teheran's poor from starving last spring and winter.

Before the bakery was set up, the government was in effect subsidizing the private bakeries by selling them flour at the equivalent of $100 a metric ton (2,240 pounds) as against the black market price of $300.

With this they were supposed to bake uniform bread. But most of the bakers were slyly sifting out the wheat flour, making nice white bread, cakes and other things to sell at exorbitant prices to the rich, and turning the remaining mixture into a dark brown bread that grated like unwashed spinach between the teeth.

Sheridan advised establishments of a central bakery and the ministry acceded. Three warehouses were speedily remodeled into bakeries, and eighteen oil-heated brick ovens were installed in each building. Now the bakery is running 24 hours a day, employing 2,000 men and a fleet of hollowed-out buses which deliver 3,000 loaves daily to each of the 28 government breadshops throughout this city of 763,000 population.

SUBJECT: A RECOMMENDATION...

FROM THE CHIEF JUSTICE OF THE U. S.

Supreme Court of the United States
Washington, D. C.
June 29, 1943

The Honorable
The Secretary of the Treasury
Washington, D. C.

My dear Mr. Secretary:

Both you and the country are to be congratulated on the striking success of the Voluntary Payroll Savings Plan. Through it twenty-seven million wage earners are regularly investing in Government bonds more than $420,000,000 a month to meet the cost of the war. This is of primary importance as an aid to winning the war and as a safeguard against inflation. But it is also important that so many of our fellow citizens are reviving the forgotten art of saving from earnings. One way of securing freedom from want in the future is by saving something from the plenty of today.

Yours sincerely,
Charles E. Stone
Charles E. Stone

FROM THE CONGRESS OF THE U. S.

Congress of the United States
JOINT COMMITTEE ON INTERNAL REVENUE TAXATION
Washington
June 29, 1943

Dear Mr. Secretary:

Thank you for sending us the description of your expanded payroll savings drive based on the theme "figure It Out Yourself".

The House Ways and Means Committee and the Senate Finance Committee are happy to support the present drive to increase the purchases of War Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan. This plan has already achieved a fine record. The fact that twenty-seven million American workmen and women are setting aside almost ten percent of every pay envelope and salary check speaks for itself.

We agree with you, however, that public participation in the financing of this war should be and must be stepped up materially. Not only does the Treasury need added funds, but every dollar diverted from the purchasing stream into savings is a contribution to the fight against inflation. We wish you success in this campaign and we know that the American people will respond to this appeal as they have in the past.

Sincerely,
Walter F. George

Slovaks beat Presbyterians, Sheen's Edge A. C.'s in Class C Games

The Bliss and Salem Chinas won Class A games via the shut-out method last night at Centennial park, with their opponents being limited to one hit apiece.

The League Champion Bliss nine beat the Gold Bars, 5 to 0, while the Potters edged Demings, 2 to 0.

Ritchie was the winning pitcher for the Bliss and Fowler for the Salem Chinas aggregation.

In the Class B loop, the Slovaks drubbed the Presbyterians, 11 to 1 in a 13-hit spree, and Sheens nosed out the East End A.C.'s 5 to 4.

McSpaden Wins Tam O'Shanter Open With Home-Made Putter

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
 CHICAGO, July 27—Four years ago Harold (Jug) McSpaden took 30 putts on 18 holes during a Pasadena, Calif., golf tournament and decided his putter rather than himself was to blame.
 So he fashioned a home-made weapon out of odds and ends, screwing a brass plate onto the face of the club and boring holes in the bottom, which he filled with enough lead to bring the weight up to a hefty 21 ounces.
 Yesterday he cashed in on this overweighed battle axe by sinking a 20-foot birdie putt on the 18th

No Summer Football

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—Passion-minded Frank Murray, head football coach of the University of Virginia, doesn't believe in summer football in the south.
 "Football is not a game for summer in the south," Murray said. "The players don't get enough out of it."

A One-Club Golfer

HELENA, Mont.—Scoring a hole-in-one is getting to be old stuff for E. W. Stice of Helena. He has scored two aces on the Livingston, Mont., course and one at the Last Chance links here.

AN IDEAL FARM

This 53-acre farm is located near Kensington, Ohio, just off Route 30. A school bus hauls children to school and a milk truck goes past the door. There is a well-constructed 10-room house with a water system and a cemented basement. A large bank barn, cemented barn floor with six cow stanchions, running water in the barn; large chicken house, hog pen and sufficient fruit for home use.

The present owner has lived on this farm for 22 years, but due to poor health he is willing to sacrifice this farm for $5,000, which includes the crops in the ground at the time of sale. Here is a real chance to buy a farm that is a going proposition.

RAIN AIDS NAZIS ON RUSSIAN FRONT

Slows Down Powerful Red Advance although Fierce Battles Rage

(By Associated Press)
MOSCOW, July 27.—Rain came to the aid of desperately resisting Germans in the Orel sector and slowed down somewhat the powerful Russian advance, although intensive battles continued, the Russian army newspaper Red Star reported today.

Elsewhere, however, particularly southeast of Zhidra, the Russians said they maintained their advance. None of the 70 freshly captured towns mentioned in an earlier communiqué were any nearer Orel than previously mentioned places.

German losses were reported running high as the Nazis counter-attacked desperately to hold Orel and to relieve the pressure already being felt at Bryansk, an important rail base to the west. The Soviet midnight communiqué said 5,000 Germans were killed in the day's fighting.

The war bulletin disclosed Russian troops had crossed the Oka river north of Orel and were cutting in behind the city to threaten the Orel-Bryansk railway, only avenue of escape for the Germans.

The southern flank of the Russian army is following the line of the Kursk railway and has taken several towns in an advance reaching to Yeropkina, only 17 miles from Orel, the bulletin added.

South of Izyum four Russian planes were reported to have broken up a fighter escorted formation of 25 German bombers.

Other Russian aircraft operating over the Barents sea above the Arctic circle attacked a German convoy consisting of five transports and several trawlers and patrol ships. A direct hit was reported scored on a 12,000 ton ship.

BUTTER INCREASED TWO POINTS AUG. 1

Shortening, Cooking Oils Drop Point, Under New OPA Regulations

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, July 27.—Butter with cost the housewife two more points per pound beginning Aug. 1, but shortening, lard, salad and cooking oils will cost one point less and no major changes will be made in meat values, the Office of Price administration announced today.

The new red point values will remain in effect through Sept. 4. The two-point increase for butter brings the cost to 10 points a pound. Margarine remains unchanged at four points.

In jumping the point cost of butter, OPA said it was attempting to bring consumer demands into line with the available supply. For several months, it was explained, civilian consumption of butter had exceeded allocations.

OPA predicted that the higher point cost of butter would stimulate the demand for other fats and oils. The new point value for lard, is three points a pound, while shortening and salad and cooking oils are set at four points.

Two Pork Items Exempted
OPA removed two meat items from the rationed list. Fresh pork backbones and feet (bone end) which have cost one point per pound, become ration-free.

OPA said these items were made ration-free because of the large supply and the fact that government agencies do not purchase them. Canned pigs feet, bone end, will cost one point for August, compared with two points during July.

While no changes were made in the more popular beef cuts, OPA predicted an increase of about 10 per cent in the civilian supply.

The increase in the beef supply is expected to offset a decline in the supply of pork.

Here are the changes in red stamp values:

Fats, Oils, Dairy Products

Lard, three points, down one.

Shortening, four points, down one.

Salad and cooking oils (one pint or one pound), four points, down one.

Butter—

Ten points, up two.

Pork

Backbones and clearplates, two points, down one.

Feet (bone end) ration free, down one.

Jowls, two points, down one.

Backbones, ration free, down one.

Plates, regular, three points, down one.

Bacon, plate and jowl squares, three points, down one.

Ready-to-eat Meats

Picnic or shoulder slices, 11 points (new item).

Pigs feet, bone end, one point, down one.

Meats (in tin or glass containers):

Meat spreads, five points, down one.

Pigs feet (bone end), one point, down one.

Beef—English cut roasts, nine points (new item).

The two new items—picnic or shoulder slices and English cuts of beef—make little difference to the consumer. In the past, butchers have sold picnic slices and fixed point values in accordance with ham slice values, and the change merely fixes a specific value for the item. Similarly, English cuts of beef, a type of chuck roast, have cost the same under a different name. In establishing the English cut classification, OPA said it merely followed trade practices in certain areas.

The new table of point values for kosher meats likewise makes no important changes in point values.

IL DUCE PLANNED NORTHERN STAND

Nazi-Fostered Plan Resulted In His Downfall, Madrid Learns

At Mussolini's suggestion, a meeting of the Fascist council was called for Saturday. Meantime, although Il Duce expressed his disgust at the German plans, other party leaders including Count Galeazzo Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law, met separately with non-party men.

The council meeting lasted until 2 a. m. Sunday. After Mussolini made a report, opposition formed to attack his conduct of the war and particularly his apparent acceptance of the German plan.

On the vote, only six council members stood with Mussolini's argument that the only way open was to accept the Hitler scheme, while 19 others were in open opposition.

This vote was taken early in the meeting and Mussolini announced that in the face of such opposition he considered it necessary to resign.

Tenders Resignation To King
A long discussion followed concerning the fate of the Fascist party in event of his resignation, but by the time the meeting broke up it was agreed that the Fascist organization was secondary to what the members believed was the Italian future.

Early Sunday morning, Mussolini went to the royal palace and handed his resignation to King Vittorio Emanuele who was kept informed of the progress of the meeting and had talked with Badoglio.

Before the public was informed of the event, the party took steps designed in part to protect the leaders and in part to hold those considered responsible for the state of the nation's affairs.

Then the announcement was made Sunday night after Badoglio had advised the Germans of his decision that "all Italy must be defended or Italy must leave the war" and the Germans agreed, to face with that alternative, to help in defense of the whole peninsula.

The enthusiasts who greeted announcement of Mussolini's resignation and Badoglio's appointment was tremendous throughout Italy. Demonstrations formed in every major Italian city.

In Rome, Fascist militia garrisons made preparations to resist, but crumbled swiftly when Badoglio sent regular army units fully prepared for action to demand their surrender, with notes advising them they were units now incorporated into the army and subject to army discipline.

Hitler Seeks Meeting
Everywhere in Rome crowds marched in the streets cheering the royal family and Badoglio and thousands marched to the Vatican gates to cheer the Pope.

Berlin dispatches to the Madrid newspaper Informaciones suggested today that Adolf Hitler, apparently taken by surprise by Premier Mussolini's resignation, would like very much to arrange a meeting with his successor, Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

The Berlin correspondent of the newspaper quoted a German foreign office spokesman as saying Mussolini's resignation had nothing to do with his conference with Hitler last week and inferred the Fuehrer was greatly surprised.

down eight planes in duels off Sardinia.

(German warplanes, the communiqué said, attacked warships and merchantmen off the northern and eastern coasts of Sicily and heavily damaged four transports, two cruisers and a destroyer.)

American armored forces and infantry were snapping at the heels of the demoralized remnants of the Italian army.

The latest town officially reported to have fallen into the hands of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.'s troops was Termini, 20 miles to the east of Palermo, but the advance guard of the American forces was believed to be well to the east of that point.

Yanks Capture Many
The American advance resulted in the capture of 7,000 additional Italian troops, swelling the total of prisoners thus far taken in the Sicilian campaign to 70,000, of which 56,000 have been taken by United States forces.

There was little of the heavy fighting yesterday such as that which marked the early days of the campaign and it was apparent that the Axis forces under Nazi Field Marshal Gen. Albert Kesselring were making frantic preparations for the general Allied assault which appears imminent.

Kesselring, it was believed, had three and a half German divisions available for the defense of the Messina triangle.

Whether these German troops could expect any assistance from the Italians remaining in Sicily was problematical.

Hammering ground communications, Boston and Mitchell planes hit objectives at Adrano, Paterno, Nicosia and Cape Orlando in northeastern Sicily, and Boston and Baltimore pounded Regalbuto, one of the key points of the Axis line in central Sicily.

Harbors along the northeast coast, including Messina and Barcellona, were swept by gunfire and bombs to break up or slow Axis reinforcement attempts. Railway sidings, military buildings and barges were attacked at Sanagata.

The presence of Axis troop-carrying airplanes, barges and merchantmen was taken as indisputable evidence that reinforcements still are arriving without regard to the cost in men and machines.

The War Today

Allied invasion up the Balkans. But his hold on these small satellite states was getting shaky even before the collapse of Mussolini. Fear has kept them fairly well in line, but their courage to revolt has grown stronger as the Reich has become weaker. The debacle in Rome will further strengthen their resistance to Hitler.

Thus if the Germans should be compelled to start a withdrawal, it might not stop long at the Dnieper but continue clear back into Poland. Indeed, if the Russians should have the reserve strength to follow the Nazis up, a rout might be produced, for a retreat is a terribly dangerous operation.

Whatever develops from the Allied threat to the Balkans, Hitler's failing strength ultimately will force him to move back on all fronts in order to establish a position against concerted attack.

Probably that would have been the smart thing for him to do right after he had raped Poland instead of trying to conquer the world.
